What's happening...
The recent drought is still having an impact on Australia produce. Many crops were not planted and we're still waiting on some crops such as oats. News reports have also suggested an Australian rice shortage but we've been buying up big so we should be OK in the short term. We're still experiencing intermittent shortages of imported goods due to a global shortage of shipping containers. Increased consumer demand means a back log at the docks and there will be price increases due to congestion tax and higher freight charges.
